1. On 9 October 1947, a good will mission headed by General Fiallo, Minister of War and Chief of Staff, Dominican Army, left Ciudad Trujillo for a courtesy visit to Haiti. The trip was made in a B-17 plane armed with eight 50mm guns and equipped with bomb sights. The plane left Port-au-Prince ostensibly to go to Miami, Florida, but it is rumored the plane went from Port-au-Prince to reconnoiter the coast of Cuba, and did not return to Ciudad Trujillo until late at night on 9 October 1947.
2. The plane was piloted by George Phillips, a former US Navy pilot, who is employed in the Dominican Army as a flying instructor. 25X1X6
3. In connection with the trip of the B-17, [REDACTED] the Dominican Government has learned that attempts will be made to land arms and ammunition from Venezuela and Cuba on the south coast of the Dominican Republic, between Barahona and Azua, and on the north coast in the vicinity of Puerto Plata.
